

Welcome To Our New Bleached Cotton Website

Here at Barnhardt Bleached Cotton we're excited to announce our new Bleached Cotton website. Today, the site—along with our new blog—has gone live, and we couldn't be prouder about it. As the leading producer of all grades of bleached cotton fiber, we have put our extensive knowledge of cotton into the new website.

This updated website is something that's been in the works for quite some time. From the beginning we set out to not only create a website that represents our century-plus of cotton experience, but to build a definitive Internet destination for folks who want to learn anything and everything about bleached cotton.

A History in Bleached Cotton

We have a storied history when it comes to cotton, one that dates all the way back to the turn of the 20th century. Though we started as a modest supplier of layered cotton batting, horse drawn buggy seats, and filler for quilts and comforters, our family-owned company has grown to offer some of the most innovative cotton products in the industry today. We're extremely proud that we've been able to carry founder Thomas M. Barnhardt's torch into the 21st century.

As you click through our site we think you'll see, rather quickly, that we're also cotton advocates. At the end of the day the true star here is always cotton, a miracle borne from nature.

A Definitive Source for Bleached Cotton

We've done everything in our power to provide valuable and extensive information about this wonder fiber, from our exhaustive Innovation page to details about cotton's inherent sustainability.

Whether you jump into our definitive guide to cotton properties, spend a few minutes scanning the many resources in our Cotton Library, or want to learn more about our Totally Chlorine-Free \(TCF\) process, we're confident we've provided plenty of cotton data for you sink your teeth into.
